

Have ~ed (≅ is/am/are ~ing)	~고 있어요 ~는 중이에요
Had ~ed (≅ was/were ~ing)	~고 있었어요 ~는 중이었어요

F.Y.I

: As far as I know, we do not have such expressions in Korean. That is why many English learners from Korea have trouble correctly using them. Both languages are so different in every way... so it is better to just suck it up 😊

먹다	하다	가다	보다
밥	일	()집	영화
빵	공부	학교	부모님
	운동	체육관	()친구
	게임	술집
		식당

Who?

--

Particle

은 는

When?

어제 (밤/낮) 오늘(밤/낮) 내일(밤/낮)

Particle

에 (Don't add this after 어제, 오늘, and 내일) 어젯밤에 (o)
--

Where?

Refer to the '가다' column

Particle

에

With who?

--

Particle

과 와

What?

--

Particle

을 를 에

Verb?

--

Conjugation

--

I	저 (나)
We	저희 (우리)
She	그녀
He	그
They	그들

In today's dating culture, "Ghosting" is pretty common and I also experienced it several times. Anyway, we also have an equivalent expression in Korean.

"잠수타다"

It literally means "go underwater" (Submarine is 잠수함)

Me : 요새 그녀랑 어떻게 되가고있어?
(How's it going with her these days?)

Him : 아 몰라. 잘 되어가는 줄 알았는데 갑자기 잠수탔어.. □♂
(Ahhh I don't know. I thought things were going well but she all of sudden ghosted me)

Me : 걱정마. 세상의 반은 여자야.
(Don't worry. Women are half the world's population)